Over the years I have become more and more convinced that the real difference between Democrats and Republicans is that Republicans have no shame about cynically manipulating any issue for political or personal gain. It is my sincere hope that the Terri Schiavo case is the Republican Party's equivalent of "jumping the shark." Ever since a scene in "Happy Days" where the Fonz jumped over a shark while water skiing, the term has come to symbolize a desperate maneuver to shore up a dying effort.

Congressman Jim Moran and Fay Slotnick have both eloquently expressed the feelings of many of us on this issue (see articles this issue). We can only hope that the American people continue to see the Congressional Republicans' unconstitutional attempt to circumvent the court decisions in this matter for the contemptible ploy that it was. Molly Ivin, as usual, put it very well: "I am indebted to the blogger called Digby for the following points: Those who passed this bill are the same politicians who want to outlaw medical-malpractice suits like the one that provided the care for Schiavo for many years while she was in "a persistent vegetative state." They are the same politicians who've just finished changing bankruptcy law so it's now much harder for families hit by tragedies like this one to get out from under the staggering medical bills. How dare they talk about morality?"

On Sunday, the unbelievable hypocrisy of Tom Delay was

"We ought to err on the side of life in a case like this," said White House spokesman Scott McClellan. article for the May issue of the newsletter. At the April ADC meeting we will be presenting the 2005 Precinct Operations Plan to the entire membership. The plan has already been circulated to the Precinct Captains. The plan is ambitious, hard-hitting and is designed to be flexible. We believe that the plan has the elements to insure victory in November and we want all Precinct Captains and volunteers to feel free to offer suggestions. During the first week in April, we will begin Precinct phoning and canvassing. Please contact your precinct captain if you can help. As you all know, the City of Alexandria is in the midst of the Budget Process. We will set aside 20 minutes at the April ADC meeting for our own mini-budget hearing. Individuals who want to speak will have one minute to offer advice to City Council. If your comment will take longer than that to explain, please bring a hard copy of your comments and we will forward them to City Council. Yours in the fervent hope that spring actually comes sometime in this century.

this a "Right to Privacy" issue grossly understates the effect of the intended intrusion. It literally makes me short of breath. This is a tragedy. This is a personal crisis for Terri Schiavo's closest relatives. This is neither my business nor that of the legislature. Congress' overreaching makes me short of breath

By Fay Slotnick, ADC Deputy Chair for Finance & Administration

Although I jokingly said that I couldn't continue to live in this country if Bush were reelected, it appears more likely that I won't be permitted to die in this country because he has reached the level of a constitutional crisis, I must have read the wrong document. There appears to be a compulsion on the part of this administration to control the most intimate aspects of the lives of individual citizens. No! That is not the function of the Federal Government. Certainly, Terri Schiavo's medical treatment is not within the jurisdiction of the Federal Legislature. I was sickened to read the following. "We ought to err on the side of life in a case like this," said White House spokesman Scott McClellan. Asked about a bill that would cover a single person, he said, "I think most people recognize that this case involves some extraordinary circumstances." Cong. Moran addresses Schiavo matter on the floor

By James P. Moran, Virginia's Eighth District Congressperson

Mr. Speaker, the most traumatic moment of my life was when my mother died in my arms. She had chosen not to be dependent on a respirator in a hospital but to die at home with her family. These circumstances, or some variant of them, occur eventually within every family, and whether the Federal Government has the right to intervene in those private tragedies is the issue before us tonight.

I talked to Terri Schiavo's brother today, and then finding what he said convincing, I read through all of Mr. Schiavo's testimony and interviews. And now I do not know who is right and who is wrong. But that is the point. Neither do my colleagues. But 10 courts have heard from all sides, from every relevant witness, and all of them, 19 judges, many of them conservative Republicans, all have reached the same conclusion, that in fact Terri Schiavo's husband's wishes are consistent with his wife's, that the feeding tube should be removed.

I have never met, certainly not examined, Ms. Schiavo; but nor have any of the so-called medical experts in this body that have testified on the basis of edited videotapes ever examined her either. But every qualified doctor who has examined her has reached the same conclusion: she is in a perpetual vegetative state; she has no cerebral cortex.

The reason this issue is before us, I think, is that it is all about religion and politics. But does not every religion teach, first of all, that no human being has the right to play God? And is not one of the very first principles of politics is that we should not use individual human tragedies, people suffering in anguish, political pawns to appease the interest groups that keep us in power.

Mr. Speaker, the night that this was brought up last week, we also voted on a budget resolution, and we decided to cut tens of billions of dollars out of the program that enables the poorest and the sickest and the most dependent among us throughout this country to be able to live in a dignified, safe and sanitary nursing home. We decided to cut that money. I did not agree with cutting that money from Medicaid, but I do agree we have that right. We have the right to cut taxes for the wealthy, while we cut health care for the poor. But we have no legislative, constitutional authority to intervene in these very personal family matters, and most importantly, we have no moral right to be doing this tonight.

Legislative Wrap-Up attracts many desserts & donations

Book Club reads His Excellency: George Washington

By Peter Schumaier, ADC Member

The ADC Book Club will meet April 20th at 7:30 pm at La Madeleine in Old Town (500 King Street). The ADC Book Club meets ten times a year on the third Wednesday of the month at the same time and location. For more information please contact Peter Schumaier at 703-549-3204.

In April, the club will read and discuss Joseph Ellis' latest book, His Excellency: George Washington.

Drawing from the newly catalogued Washington papers at the University of Virginia, Joseph Ellis paints a full portrait of George Washington's life and career -- from his military years through his two terms as president. Ellis illuminates the difficulties the first executive confronted as he worked to keep the emerging country united in the face of adversarial factions.

Mayor and Council drop tax rate to 50-year low

For more information on Alexandria's budget visit www.alexandriava.gov/budget

The Alexandria City Council voted March 22 to advertise an ordinance to establish the real and personal property tax rates for the proposed FY2006 budget. The budget will be the subject of a public hearing on April 4th and the proposed tax rates are scheduled for adoption by Council on May 2. The Council voted tonight to advertise the proposed real estate and no vote is to be taken on the assessed valuation, which is 4 cents less than the City Manager proposed earlier this month and 8 cents less than the current real estate tax rate. This advertised rate is the highest in our history.

est Council can consider during this budget process, however, Council can consider a lower real estate tax rate.

Mayor William D. Euille noted that the Council has heard from many residents concerned about the rising tax bills and said Council must be a "responsive and responsible fiduciary" when setting a tax rate that will provide substantial tax relief to homeowners as well as ensure the continued quality of public services.

Alexandria City Manager James K. Hartmann on March 8 proposed a $565.7 million All Funds budget for Fiscal Year

2006, an 8.2 percent increase. As part of that All Funds budget, he proposed a $471million General Fund operating budget for FY2006, an increase of 8.7 percent over the FY2005 General Fund budget.

The City Manager's proposed 4-cent tax reduction to $95.5 cents was the largest tax rate reduction proposed by the City Manager in 15 years. The 4-cent proposed reduction (an now the 8-cent proposed reduction) if approved, would be the lowest tax rate in Alexandria in more than 50-years.

ADC member protects legacy from Bush's wrecking crew

If you've wondered why fellow ADC member Scott Frey has been a little scarce of late, it may not come as a surprise that his day job as Senior Policy Advisor to the President of the National Committee to Preserve Social Security and Medicare is consuming a bit more of his time this year. Perhaps you caught a glimpse of him at Congressman Jim Moran's February 7th town hall meeting.

At that event, Scott's boss, former Congresswoman Barbara Kennelly (D-CT), delivered stirring praise of our Congressman's staunch opposition to the President's plans to dismantle Social Security through privatization.

Scott would like all to know he's working overtime to preserve FDR's great legacy for our children, and hopes to be back in the ADC fold real soon. The National Committee to Preserve Social Security and Medicare is actively seeking Washington area volunteers of all ages to participate in pro-Social Security/anti-privatization events on Capitol Hill.

If you can help, or have a story to tell about the value of Social Security in your own life, you may give Scott at call at 202-216-0420.

What being a member of the ADC means to me

By Pat Butler, ADC George Mason Precinct Captain

To be a member of the Alexandria Democratic Committee is to assume the responsibility of working on behalf of the Democratic Committee and the Democratic Party on a year-round basis: to represent the party in and to the public; to contribute to the party through donation of whatever resources (time, effort, ideas, money, etc.) one is able to give; to actively participate in the programs of the Committee and the Party on a year round basis (not just during the campaigns); to commit to working for the party at whatever tasks are needed; to provide leadership in party activities and programs as appropriate, particularly in one's home precinct; and to be a good citizen in Alexandria, Virginia, and the United States.
